Excerpt: . I MOGENS SUMMER it was; in the middle of the day; in a corner of the enclosure. Immediately in front of it stood an old oak tree, of whose trunk one might say, that it agonized in despair because of the lack of harmony; between its fresh yellowish foliage and its black and gnarled branches; they resembled most of, all grossly misdrawn old gothic arabesques. Behind the oak was a luxuriant thicket of hazel: with dark sheenless leaves, which were so dense, that neither trunk nor branches could be seen. Above the hazel rose two straight, joyous maple trees with gayly indented leaves, red stems and long dangling clusters of green fruit. Behind the maples came the forest -- a green evenly rounded slope, where birds went out and in as elves in a grasshill. All this you could see if you came wander...
